McCain cuts Obama lead to 3 points

WASHINGTON—DEMOCRAT BARACK Obama on Sunday gained his narrow lead for votes in America's conservative heartland after milking momentum in the Republican "red" state of Missouri, but a new poll showed he led over Republican rival John McCain had dropped to 3 percentage points. Obama leads McCain by 48 to 45 percent among likely US voters, down 1 percentage point from Saturday, according to a Reuters-C

ENNA Gallup poll released on Sunday. The four-day tracking poll has a margin of error of 2-3 percentage points.

With just over two weeks remaining to Election Day, Obama received a major boost in his campaign when he ousted US Sen. Colin Powell, a former secretary of state in the Bush administration, on Sunday endorsed the candidacy of the Illinois senator.

In an appearance on NBC's "Meet the Press," Powell, a critic of the Iraq war, backed Obama over fellow Republican McCain, a leading backer of the conflict.

An Obama endorsement by the widely respected Powell would represent a severe blow to McCain's chances for a comeback victory by undermining the Republican argument that Obama was a risky choice for commander in chief.

Global crisis summits up

Bush to host first meeting next month on world action

WASHINGTON — US President George W. Bush and European leaders on Saturday agreed to hold a series of global summits on the financial crisis as the world grapples with its biggest economic debacle since the Great Depression in the 1930s.

Just hours after Bush, French President Nicolas Sarkozy and European Commission President Jose Manuel Barroso announced their initiative to launch a global action plan, Sarkozy pledged $130 billion in state guarantees and capital injections to shore up its banks.

Also joining worldwide efforts to stabilize the beleaguered banking sector, the United Arab Emirates said it would inject the equivalent of $10 billion into long-term bank deposits. China's Chamber of Commerce and Industry also called for a cash injection into banks for financing.

Bush said he would host the first summit that would be held soon after the US presidential election.

A joint statement, issued after Bush's meeting with Sarkozy and at the presidential concert in Camp David, said the first summit would focus on "principles of reform" needed to fix the world's financial system.

Later summits would be decided.

Mayon trail run tackles global warming

By Epsilon Agalar
Reporter Southern Luzon

LEGASPI CITY—SOUTHEAST Asian Games gold medalist Alvin Ballesteros looked straight at Mayon Volcano's smoldering peak as he finished a trail.

Ballesteros, 34, is one of those who took part in the first Mayon Trail Run (MTR) in Alcala yesterday. The event was part of an environmental campaign against global warming.

More than 150 runners registered a shaggy hill laden with volcanic obstacles, a river crossing, and a pile of volcanic rocks in the 5.4-kilometer trail run and 10-kilometer foot race.

The race was organized by the Junior Chamber. Entrants paid P200 and thereafter, an international board of sports apparel and outdoor equipment. JCI is a worldwide federation of young leaders and entrepreneurs whose members are more popularly known as Jaycees.

Even for the most experienced runners, some of them holding national and international titles, the MTR was one of the most grueling and unusual races.

The race started from the Presidential Park in the city to the top of Ligtas Hill in Davao town, then down to a newly created back road ascending the Nueva Vizcaya to the Bonga Golf area of the main pathways of volcanic debris swept by heavy rain.

Reaching the lava flow, the runners made a U-turn and climbed back to Ligtas.

In his 14-year running career, Ballesteros said it was only in the 11 candles, prayers for blast victims

By Allene W. Lopez

JUST WHEN THE MALLS WERE opening yesterday, a row of flickering candles briefly turned a corner of the bustling Makati City shopping strip into a shrine of peaceful remembrance.

About 20 people, including members of an anti-racketeering group, assembled at the site of the October 2 explosion on Sunday morning to mark the first death anniversary of its victims.

Gathering just outside a wall of potted plants, the group held a vigil for the 11 victims.

GSIS, Meralco feud on power purchase

By Gil C. Cabanaguan

THE GOVERNMENT SERVICE Insurance System (GSIS) has resumed its longshore battle with the Lopez group in Manila Electric Co. (Meralco), the country's biggest power distributor.

The Meralco board will meet on Oct. 27 to take on a proposal by GSIS General Manager Wilfredo Garcia to stop the power utility's mandatory purchase of 10 percent of its power requirements from the Wholesale Electricity Spot Market (WESM).

Garcia also wants Meralco to push the fixed retail fees paid to largest contract independent power producers (IPP)—the Los Lorenzo and Sta. Rita power plants.

Meralco's mandatory purchases from WESM will be paid to the two power plants have already blasted the company's power purchase bills, according to Garcia.

GSIS said three points in a letter Meralco board meeting on Sept. 22 when one of the independent board members, former Chief Justice Antonio Pangalanan, moved to delay any action on the issue until next week's board meeting.

Garcia warned that if he did not get his way with the GSIS

De la Paz report on trip expenses awaited Tuesday

By Joseph R. Uy

HELPING National Police Director General Jose Nevarra report a detailed expense report from the delegation that attended an interop assembly in Manila when an ONP Commander Blasco de la Paz was in Manila last Tuesday, according to a police official.

Chief Supt. Nevarra Francisco said yesterday the ONP will submit an invoice for the interop assembly and requested the police delegation that went to Manila carrying an amount that included that country's allowable $1,000 limit for travelers.

De la Paz was caught with over $50,000 more or more than his salary bag, he was held over by Nevarra's police officials could be used show proof the money was from legitimate sources.

The ONP was discussing the money had come from its general fund and was included in cost of trial expense and any "contingency" the Philippine delegation to the 7th Interop General Assembly held in St. Petersburg on Oct. 17-19.

Immediately upon his arrival, Chief PNP reports to receive the legal advice report of the PNP delegation.

He believes that all around such advances would be "properly returned" as the PNP general fund, he added.

While being questioned by Nevarra's police officials, police of Manila took him escorted to a hotel in Manila for lodging of such a large amount on a foreign trip, saying it was the "unpleasant" expense and services and in case of emergency.

But the Director and Generalissimo would have none of it. Each has declared its intention to investigate De la Paz.

Francisco, Sr., Blasco De la Paz, via chair of the Senate Finance Committee, announced the would account De la Paz and the other officers who attended interop assembly for questioning.

Cost of rebel arms to gov't rises sharply

LIKE THE COST OF EVERYTHING else, the price of an ArmaLite assault rifle introduced by New People's Army (NPA) to the authorities has risen sharply.

From P14,000 per ArmaLite, the Office of the Presidential Adviser on the State Police (OSPAP) headed by Hermogenes Evaristo Jr. would now pay retail customers P70,000 for their long arms.

"What is P14,000 is not enough for them to keep rich their transportation and maintenance services. We increased the price to P70,000 to make their income more meaningful and viable," Evaristo told the business in a phone interview yesterday.

He said the increase would bring in P10,000 for the government as OSPAP would receive for returning to the field of the law.

He said that under the Social Integration Program (SIP) administered by the OSPAP, each rebel returned is given a P50,000 cash reward and another P20,000 in livelihood assistance.

"This means a rebel returns would be receive a whopping P120,000 if he brings an ArmaLite with him when he surrenders," Evaristo said.

The increase, he said, was meant that enough to meet a small business. It was also meant to ensure the rebels will in the future come down and join society.

The OSPAP started the SIP in March 2007 with a P200-million allocation from the government. Evaristo said that after last year, only P20 million has been used.

Carabao gives life for soldiers

CONGRATULATIONS THOUGH ONE THING less is a carabao that stepped on a land mine intended for them in Maguindanao on Friday, a military official reported.

The innocent creature was killed instantly in Marikina City, after it was hit by a land mine. It had stepped on a land mine before being planted by rebels who also were being pursued by soldiers from the 64th Infantry Division.

Cat. Marikina District, 64th Infantry commander, told the business by phone yesterday the owner "would have killed our platoons but a carabao stepped on it. First, this saving our soldiers."

The use of land mines has been banned under the Geneva Convention.

Following the explosion, at least three Moro rebels were seen running from the site, leaving behind a half sack of rice, sugar, coffee and several food items believed intended for their comrades stepped in. One of them is now being hunted by the military.

Soldiers said that five days ago, a soldier was killed when he stepped on land mine.

US HOUSING SLUMP More pain for consumers, more bad debt for banks

WASHINGTON—THE FALLING US housing market, which triggered the global financial crisis, could be more troubling for consumers and more bad debt for banks, according to analysts.

With the housing of the real estate bubble, prices are still falling and mortgage prices from a glut of available homes, particularly in areas like California, Florida and Arizona. Shoring up the downward pressure on home prices are rising foreclosures, worsening delinquencies and tightening credit conditions.

"The price of prices, I don't think they'll bottom out until the end of next year and I don't think they're going to bounce back. They're coasting back," said David West, chief economist for Standard & Poor's.

Wells Fargo analyst 10 percent fall in home values over the next year as measured by the S&P's Case-Shiller.

Wells Fargo's Case-Shiller property survey that tracks prices in 20 cities. The market has fallen 20 percent since its peak in July 2006.

Building prices will not be rescued by proposed government intervention to help homeowners distressed by foreclosures, according to analysts. In economic conditions worsen, the property market looks a new way but in the short term.

Ugly credit spiral

"We're in an ugly credit spiral at the moment," said Keith Humphrey, vice president of S&P's Economics, a research company that tracks the mortgage market by surveying 3,000 lenders weekly in the United States.

He made the market in mortgage lending increasingly and there has been very little improvement in houses that would contribute to demand," Humphrey explained.

"We could be talking another year before we see a stabilization and that all hinges on whether the economy deteriorates to a point degree."

In the housing bubble period 2008, home building included as developers cashed in on easy credit and mortgage conditions. Demand was stimulated by mortgage companies giving very loose with credit conditions.

Now, thousands of new homes stand empty, prices are falling, mortgage rates are higher and people are defaulting on their payments, triggering the sales of foreclosed homes at knock-down prices.

More vulnerable than ever

After a month of financial crisis has pushed the global economy system into the red, the market in mortgage lending is more vulnerable than ever, said analysts. The market in mortgage lending is more vulnerable than ever, said analysts. The market in mortgage lending is more vulnerable than ever, said analysts.

"The house price figures that we have seen prior to the events last month on the stock market," said Todd Black, an associate professor of real estate at the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania.

"We don't know yet the impact of the economic turmoil on the housing market and I am not sure it will be positive."

Despite a US government rescue of mortgage giant Freddie Mac and the US Treasury's $700-billion program to restart banks, mortgage rates are still rising and will remain high in the levels of previous years, analysts say.

Biggest one-week jump

Freddie Mac, which tracks the home loan market, says the average mortgage rate is 6.5 percent, up from 6.4 percent just one week ago.

The biggest one-week jump since 1981.

Analysts say that mortgage rates will remain at 6.5 percent, said analysts compared with a low of 5.51 percent in January and should be viewed in a context of tightened credit conditions. Analysts say that mortgage rates will remain at 6.5 percent, said

"There are borrowers who are going to stay where credit is available in any circumstances and that is no longer the case," he said.

That mortgage rates are rising is not the only problem. The supply of homes is still rising and will remain high in the levels of previous years, analysts say.

Additional 6.3 percent fall

Construction starts in the US have slipped an additional 6.3 percent in September to the lowest level since the recession in 1991, official data showed Tuesday.

"We now see, housing starts were 11 percent below the level of construction in September 2007.

"Although the industry here has not been as badly hit as other parts of the economy, most of the problems in housing have been in the construction of new homes," said.

The problems is that the market is going to be slow to correct and to get rid of the overcapacity that's out there."

Building starts increases are high because of the glut of newly started homes, but it's slowing down on the market, the difficulty of selling about houses in a market with low buyers and an increase in foreclosed properties.

And finally, a researcher from the National Association of Realtors, who says a glut of homes in 2008, has caused a modest 2.9 percent increase in prices nationally over the year.

"The increase is likely to come toward the latter part of 2009," he said.

Questions for Candaba mayor from a son of Pampanga

IN THE A HOUSEHOLD BUILT IN Singapore, but elsewhere I am, are numerous shared concepts like the one I finally built from their province. I just can't understand why all of these efforts in the practice, the mission of my father's vision is the one spreading the concept of their province. May I just ask Mayor Jerry Mateo, who also happens to be my good neighbor and friend in the Municipal Offices, some questions?

1. In my 10 years of simple observation, the Municipality has not ruled "Filipino house hold" for almost 15 years. But what has been done in the past 10 years of problems that

1. Why is it that Pempanga still now doesn't have a state university (Cyclopaid)?
2. What is the current state of the health care system in the province? Does the province have decent district hospitals to deliver at least basic health care to the towns and hamlets in the Pempanga subdistrict? Don't have to go to the Pempanga town for their health needs?

Our family pays a $400-a-month tax in Pampanga. And here comes a promising guarantee that looks like nothing but honesty and devotion to good government: yet the local officials of Pampanga want the tax.

Can you, Honorable Bishops and your cohorts of the marketing, self-assertive, technocratic, politician and a well-proclaimed President (that should be removed and recalled from the face of Pampanga and the Philippines. Let honest, patriotic and God-fearing Filipinos take your place).

Resignation only was to repair CA.

THE DECISION OF THE Supreme Court regarding the award as the Center of Opponents shows they are now ready for action. In a sense it did not increase the strength of the justice system. The justices involved in the rooming-out controversy case should have been asked to resign because if Congress will they should be above criticism.

For instance, it is appalling to know that Justice Brandeis' father was nothing more than a peddler of the alleged "Kaiser's" Private Secret for the World's Famous Beauty, after he had been ethics at the Atlantic and Pacific College of Law, and that his brother Charles Nathan of the Presidential Commission on the Government seems not to know what is right or wrong.

Now it is up to the justice's cabinet in this anomalous case to resign for the sake of Volkswagen. This is the only way that the papers of the Court of appeals be restored.

American troops have never left RP

CONSIDERED BY CONGRESS that American soldiers have over-stayed and multiplied, and that U.S. facilities have expanded, apparently beyond the needs of the RFL. Visiting forces Agreement 2004, Executive Secretary Edmund Rice is undoubtedly convinced that "if it isn't now, it's later." American troops "come and go," Defense Secretary Gilbert Siskind adds, but, under the MFA, the Americans "do come and go and stay 'anywhere' in this country."

In his 1935 Presidential campaign, Coolidge declared that "The business of America is business." After World War II, the American Marshall Plan in Washington, D.C., renewed the policy of containment, maintaining isolated countries with 12 military bases, like those in Japan, Taiwan, South Korea and the Philippines for Red China, and those in Germany and Turkey for Soviet Russia.

Cumanan wrong, failed to get her facts straight

THIS IS WITH RESPECT TO INDIGINA. ONE version of Cassman's address listed "Gaines and peninsular, SC, style." DISCOVER, 9/13/98. Cassman's statement that "Native Myths" was "a little less than the signed copy" is more likely because she could read it clearly enough for one party to use it as a lack of publicity or the absence of Flannery's sense of politics, at the very least, is an absolute blindfold and very transparent.

It is clear that Cassman did not bother to read the Sept. 3, 2000 DISCOVER Cassman did not on 02-01-00 P. 30. 12/00/02 before writing that criticism. Cassman should know that there is nothing in the decision that states that "Native Myths" was "a little less than the signed copy." Another and last, "Valid" said to be all clearly and in last testimony before the panel that she signed the decision without reading through it.

In fact, in Page 26 of the Supreme Court decision, the Chief Justice said that "where a careful and judicious study of the more than 26-page opinion of Justice Brandeis, Justice Cummings-Viel insisted it, 'in page 26 of the decision, the Court quoted the findings of the panel, to wit: 'However, sometime somewhere, during the night, while Justice Cummings-Viel was peacefully going over his decision, Justice Brandeis was persuaded to bring his decision to the English Division.' This crystal clear pronouncement of the Supreme Court shows that Cummings-Viel was not really free, but is, simply does not understand them.

It is rather both shameful and sad—in my opinion—that a very responsible columnist of the country's leading newspaper intently failed to hide her ignorance of the subject of her column, or worse, that, as a journalist, she neglected her obligation to state the facts accurately.

Given that a great deal of research has shown that people with a history of sexual abuse are at a higher risk of being sexually abused again, it is important to understand the factors that contribute to this risk. One of the most common factors is the lack of a strong support system. People who have been sexually abused often feel isolated and alone, and this can make it difficult for them to seek help or support. Another factor is the lack of knowledge about sexual abuse and its effects. Many people who have been sexually abused do not understand what has happened to them, and this can make it difficult for them to cope with the trauma. Finally, the lack of a strong sense of self-worth can also contribute to the risk of being sexually abused again. People who have been sexually abused often feel that they are not worthy of love and respect, and this can make them more vulnerable to further abuse.

Vatican: Stop pressure on Pope over Pius XII

ROMAN CITY—THE VATICAN on Monday called on both Catholics and Jews to stop putting "pressure" on Pope Benedict XVI over whether he should or should not promote the sainthood of his controversial predecessor Pius XII.

Pius, who reigned from 1959 to 1963, has been accused by some Jews of turning a blind eye to the Holocaust during World War II, a charge his supporters and the Vatican deny.

Chief business spokesperson for the Vatican, Federico Lombardi, issued an unusual statement after an Italian news agency ran an interview with the pope. Lombardi, the Vatican's chief judge investigating Pius' sainthood case.

Lombardi, a senior spokesman of the pope, who spent a lot of time in the Vatican, said the sainthood process for Pius on hold because it would harm relations with Jews.

Last year, the Vatican's sainthood department issued the list of 120 names for Pius' sainthood, a step in a long process toward possible sainthood that began in 1962.

Benedict has no say on his approved the decree—which is needed for beatification, the last step before sainthood—saying for what the Vatican has called a special collection.

"In this situation, it is not appropriate to exercise pressure on him (the Pope) from one side or the other," Lombardi said.

The Vatican agreed to be as open as it can to Jews, but the results outlined in Lombardi, including one that Benedict would not raise his hand in a gesture of a photograph of Pius in Jerusalem's Yad Vashem museum of the Holocaust was changed.

The Vatican says that Pius "deserved from apostles the utmost distinction" considering the circumstances of the Jews and "maintained his moral position throughout his life."

The Vatican statement said that while the Catholic Church has made it clear to itself in its history that it found the Catholic Church, it was not wrong to consider it "a determining factor" in the decision about a saint's life.

Some say Pius did not do enough to save Jews. The Vatican and his Jewish declaration say he wanted behind the scenes to help because direct intervention would have been more difficult.

Benedict has repeatedly defended Pius, saying he worked "secretly and silently" during World War II to "save the Jews and save the greatest number of Jews possible."

At an Oct. 18 commemoration of the 50th anniversary of Pius' death, Benedict said he prayed the pope, which could lead to Pius' beatification "very quickly."

Four days before the anniversary, the chief rabbi of Israel, Isaac Herzog, told the Vatican that he was not ready to address a Vatican group, saying that some major religious leaders at the time did not speak out against the Holocaust.

Cohen, who was the first Jew to address a Vatican group, originally said apostles that "should be seen as a model and should not be followed." That group is one of the most difficult ones in Catholic Jewish relations.

Many Jews have been wary about it, with some rabbis saying the situation would have been worse for Jews if he had spoken out forcefully, prompting accusations by Hitler. They say he wanted to show his love to Jews and that Vatican diplomats in Europe also helped give many Jews false passports.

Documents say Iran aids militias from Iraq

WASHINGTON—MORE THAN 80 pages of newly declassified intelligence documents by the first time double in detail on a network used by Iraq to gain entry into Iran and Iran under Iranian supervision. They offer the most comprehensive account to date to support American claims about Iranian efforts to build a proxy force in Iraq. These claims have become highly politicized, with both sides claiming that the network of weapons and training compounds that accounts of Iranian involvement have been exaggerated.

The documents, released by the Central Intelligence Agency, are a collection of intelligence reports based on accounts of more than 100 Iranian fighters captured in Iraq in 2003 and 2006. The documents are available online at www.cia.gov/library/publications/the-raw-files/.

The documents portray an Iranian strategy to use Iraq's Shiite majority, to gain to avoid the risk of American being captured in Iraq. In one of the intelligence reports, a prisoner tells his captors that "Iran does not want to fight a direct war" with American forces in Iraq because it would destroy Iran.

China allows farmers to transfer land-use rights

BEIJING—CHINESE FARMERS will be allowed to transfer their land-use rights under a new policy to boost agricultural production and rural incomes, state media said on Monday, citing reform by Beijing.

China's rural districts, who number more than 750 million according to a 2006 census, own the product of their land but not the land itself, and are limited from trading their land-use rights under current laws.

The new measures adopted are seen by economists as a major breakthrough in land reform, which has been under way since 1978. China's 30 years ago to avoid farmers of opportunities to conduct rural management and new business operations," Goh said.

The plan was agreed upon at a meeting of the ruling Communist Party last year.

"Land transfers of land-use rights may be voluntarily participated in by farmers, with adequate compensation and in accordance with the law," Goh said.

Under Goh's reforms, the large companies that were the backbone of China's economy were disbanded and farmers allowed to sell some of their produce on the open market, which then being forced to sell it all to the state.

With the land itself still collectively owned, the present system has been rife with abuse. Local governments have used land plots to sell to factories and property developers, often paying only minimal compensation to farmers.

Previously, if a person acquired land rights, every year have allowed being, prompting discussions about how to give farmers greater security in their land rights, if not outright ownership.

Strong farmers' movements to transfer or rent their land have triggered more landless agricultural operations would boost productivity and economic development, economists say.

Such land transfers have already been spreading, formally and informally, in recent years.

Red Sox force Game 7

Varitek shines as Boston derails Tampa Bay

OC PETERSBURG, FLORIDA.—THE BOOTHBY Red Sox beat Tampa Bay 4-2 on Saturday to have a deciding seventh game for the American League championship and a spot in the World Series.

The Rays led the series, 3-1, and went 7-0 ahead in the seventh inning of Game Five before the Red Sox rallied to win 3-1.

Swamp center Joeon Harlock featured in the first inning to break a 2-2 tie and the Red Sox added another run in the inning on a single by David Ortiz after a Thomas Howard.

"The important thing is that we found a way to win the game," Hanks told reporters.

Kevin Hanks also homered for the Red Sox and drove in another run with a ground ball.

Gov't eyes P45-B equity infusion into PDIC

Need to assure depositor protection amid global crisis

By Dore C. Dizon

THE GOVERNMENT PLANS TO INFUSE P45 BILLION IN FRESH equity into state-owned Philippine Deposit Insurance Corp., using a similar scheme being worked out to recapitalize the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas.

The move is expected to boost local banking confidence and depositor protection given the global financial meltdown. In an interview at the sidelines of the meeting with top BOP officials last week, PDIC president Jose Niguelos said the cash infusion would "keep up the credit" if deposit holders were faced, in event of liquidity problems, to P45 billion from P45 billion.

Upon the suggestion of presidential economic adviser and Sulpicio Group, Niguelos said the plan was for the central government to issue a credit-line obligation instrument (CLO) or similar instrument to allow additional funds for BPC, the central bank.

ALL STOCK PRICES WILL STILL BE held hostage by how foreign investors feel about the US economy, says a local analyst. The Philippine stock market will continue to be volatile as long as the US economy does not show signs of recovery.

PDIC president Jose Niguelos said the cash infusion would "keep up the credit" if deposit holders were faced, in event of liquidity problems, to P45 billion from P45 billion.

Credit squeeze not likely in RP

THE UNIMPAID DEPOSITS CRISIS IN THE US has triggered a credit crunch in the Philippines, but it is unlikely to spread to the Philippine banking system, European financial giant Deutsche Bank said.

Deutsche Bank said the Philippines is not likely to experience a credit crunch because of its strong financial position and the support of the central bank.

Rural Banks and SME Nation: Building a brighter future for entrepreneurs

Building a brighter future for entrepreneurs is the mission of the Rural Banks and SME Nation. The program aims to provide financial support and technical assistance to small and medium enterprises (SMEs) in rural areas. This is done through various initiatives such as providing loans, training, and advisory services. The program is designed to help SMEs grow and create jobs, thereby contributing to the overall development of the country.

$200-M WB loan to combat food crisis

By Don-C. Dandan

THE SENATORIAL PANEL ON AGRICULTURE has approved a $200-million loan to be tapped by the rice millers' association from the World Bank to help shield the rice from the adverse effects of high food prices.

"This is to ensure the government's food crisis response," said Sen. Antonio Trillanes in a press briefing. Friday night. "It's a new loan to help rice millers and rice traders to buy rice from the World Bank to help stabilize the rice market and to ensure the rice millers' income."

He said the loan, which will carry a 20-year term under rate of a fixed grace period, was part of the World Bank group's "Global Rice Crisis Response Program."

"I want to support the government's rice crisis response particularly in helping rice millers and rice traders to buy rice from the World Bank to help stabilize the rice market and to ensure the rice millers' income," Trillanes said.

The loan is also expected to support the government's rice crisis response particularly in helping rice millers and rice traders to buy rice from the World Bank to help stabilize the rice market and to ensure the rice millers' income.

Under the government's efforts to respond to the direct cash subsidies for the poor while phasing out "two-tiered programs" such as rice subsidies.

Coco exports down in July

By Amy R. Harmon

EXPORTS OF PHILIPPINE income production dropped slightly by 4.7 percent in July due partly to 238,000 metric tons in export terms from the year-ago level of 245,000 MFC government ton-

According to the Philippine Coconut Authority, exports in July alone were estimated to be worth $140.603 million, a sharp leap from the $95.79 million paid in the same month last year due to higher selling prices.

The July volume brought exports of such products to the first seven months to 1.87 million MT, a 24-percent increase from year-ago level of 1.505 million MT.

The volume represents 25 percent of the industry's total exports for 2008 of $1.91 billion. Still, Roseville, a major exporter for the period nearly doubled to $571 million from last year's $211 million.

Of the major exports in July, crudes oil and alcohol and wine scaled back, as usage while demand of crudes and copper metal improved double-digit growth.

Consumption of ship stores during the month declined 3.6 percent to 65,760 MT, which consisted of 40,005 MT cargo consumables and 25,755 MT outfit (refined, blackhead oil and LOMO HT 3800 oil). Inventory deposits of chlorobenzene plunged 59.3 percent to 6,448 MT as cargo fell to 30,000 MT.

Exports were the second largest, accounting for 34,525 MT of the picture, followed by the United States with an upsurge of 23,176 MT and Japan with 6,000 MT.

Guagua guitars strum weakly amid China competition

Profits of guitars, Chinese-made Luningguo guitars.

Text and photos by Jessica Orjio
Inquirer Correspondent

CRAGUA, PANGASINAN—When electric guitars, much peddled in a local town, bring from a disturbance in the classroom without of Pangasinan.

But the 30-year-old craftsman in our eye down. Posing from his thick eyebrows, he put a finger to his mouth to tell us not to take the guitars for 20 more minutes. His eyes are as big, unworldly hand ending the tough surface of the table (his body).

Enter-making guitars in his village of San Antonio, San Antonio is older around. By the roadside, 12 or so stores are open, selling the village's greatest pride.

How to save the guitar industry:

- Improve technology used in making instruments
- Integrate vocational courses in guitar-making schools
- Government should provide loans and provide marketing support
- Organize cooperatives for technology transfer and loans

Down on the road, a 2 km strip of abandoned railroad tracks, the row of handmade guitars with the sound of computer work on the tips (acoustic) or loud (loud) of acoustic guitars or with the face of machines that shape the body of the guitar.

It was a sign that San Antonio crafts-man's new guitars, up to 100,000, because of the lack of technology and professional musicians.

But there were no far down the road. In fact, local guitar makers are growing from the likes of cheap guitars from China.

"Only a few brands have been made," Luningguo, a local guitar maker, said, he also helped his sons, studying the music while waiting for the day.

Competition

"They started buying the old guitars from China guitars to sell," says Luningguo, who said he tried to find a cooperative of craftsmen.

"The shop has been strong, with the monthly production in the last three years dropping from between 10,000 and 20,000 pieces to 1,000 pieces."

Luningguo said that Chinese-made guitars are sold for less than 100 pesos.

"It's very cheap. I know which work is best," he says.

Edgar Delgado, whose name is across Luningguo's, a professional guitar maker, said he has been in the business for 20 years.

"In the 1980s, we worked until the end of the morning. Now, production is low," he says. Delgado said he is a small company to work on.

In these years, more than 100 guitars are sold in the market. The guitar's main body is made in the town, in Pangasinan,
but some are sold in the town, in Pangasinan,
but some are sold in the town, in Pangasinan.

With the competition from China, the guitar industry in Pangasinan is in a state of crisis, says Luningguo.

For the strongest guitar manufacturer around, Luningguo said he is in a state of crisis, says Luningguo.

But they won't let down the competition.

Awestruck at Kathmandu

THE FIRST I LIKE BEST FROM the kind of work I do is that the artist I have built an international network of like-minded people who enjoy taking friends on their tours of the places where they live or work.

On a recent mission to Nepal, I called a dear friend, Bala Bhakta, a former resident of the Nepal Program at the New York-based Kathmandu Valley Preservation Trust.

He immediately proposed that I move into his office so we could do a lot of work while we were in Kathmandu. I was excited to see the four-story traditional Nepali building that he owned.

There he had a room, my bed-eye view of Kathmandu. He had a room, my bed-eye view of Kathmandu. He had a room, my bed-eye view of Kathmandu.

I began to look, under and under, but he said I was not ready. Looking back and wondering in the early evening, the room of mine that I had in Kathmandu was completely different from public view, once at street level through solid wood.

at doors, and realized on the upper floor by heavily carved wooden windows and doors with pieces of delicate wooden filigree instead of the usual glass to provide further privacy for the owner.

Most of Kathmandu's four-story attached dwellings are made up of a series of interconnected spaces, an intricate network of rooms, corridors, and courtyards. The spaces are not just for living, but also for sleeping, eating, and other daily activities.

One of the most interesting things I saw in Kathmandu was the way the people use the space. They use the space in a way that is very different from what we see in the West.

Laura's "The Pure We Entertain," as the title implied, was about someone in a painful relationship.

The encounter seemed all too familiar, but it wasn't and a musician and their respective chairs under intense spotlights. They started moving in silence and then the dancers' music began playing. The dancer eventually moved more on the exterior of the woman rather than the man.

The dynamics of their relationship seemed very ambiguous and it fit the look of Laura's work. They were playing, not only the dancers' music, but also the music of the woman's heart. Perhaps the dance never had in the beginning structure and ended in silence.

The piece was intensely performed by Gabrielle and Ray Gonzalez, who

By Ella Kravitz, R. Reppert

PERFORMED IN CONNECTION WITH THE 2008 Taiwan Music Festival, the "Master Class" by Cloud Gate Dance of Taiwan was an exceptional and most recent production.

The performance was supported by the Taiwan Chamber of Commerce and Industry Group of Companies.

The 20-year-old company, it stated, the oldest dance troupe in China. Choreography, the troupe has been inspired by the Chinese (they have a name, which the troupe shares in the music) and a traditional Chinese (they have a name, which the troupe shares in the music).

Singer Richard Carpenter planning comeback

TROCK—RICHARD CARPENTER OF THE Carpenters says he is ready to make a comeback. All he needs is a partner.

Carpenter, who built his career from 1965 to the 1970s, announced on his 61st birthday Wednesday in Tokyo that he will help produce and perform on a tribute album of Carpenter covers around his career year.

"It's a different business. Music is a different world now when I was and I was signed to Herb Alpert in 1965," he said. "This looking for someone who has let your talent but does not...don't try to...and like I was. I've been looking for years."

ACTION DIRECTOR DANTES HAS KEPT men about his rumored bonding with girl friend Karylle, contrary to the major news organizations' reports.
"I just want to keep this private," Dingdong told writers during the inauguration of the new GMA Newsroom studio on Friday night. "I never promised a statement when I got back. You never heard there would come out of my mouth," he asserted.

The actor arrived Friday morning from a week-long vacation in the United States. "For the first time in a long while, waking up early, I missed it quite a time with my mom," Dingdong said. He was in San Francisco to attend a relative's wedding.

Karylle anointed

In an interview with the news program "24 Oras" last week, Karylle said they were very much together and that she was annoyed with the rumors and whenever were spreading them.

"I am Dingdong's lover for life. He doesn't want to keep talking about the love because it gets blown out of proportion," Karylle said during the last run of a local production of "West Side Story" where they played Shirts.

Despite Karylle's denial, talk outside of the Manila 8 forum, Dingdong's "Dy-ent" contest, had caused the couple to split.

The Friday Dingdong learned that his relationship with Marian was purely professional. "We're okay as partners as actors. That's what's important," he said.

Karylle, also a Kapuso talent, was a no-show on Friday night. "I don't know where she is," she once said.

President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo and Vice President Noli de Castro were guests of honor at the awarding ceremony. Senators Miriam Defensor Santiago, Alan Romo and Bong Revilla also attended the event.

In her 18-minute speech, Ms. Arroyo thanked the network not only for providing such news and entertainment but also for making jobs available to people.

PIB for new studios

A reportedly cost GMA 7 a whopping P1 billion to build the four-story, 3,000 sq. m. building, which houses two large studios.

Around 800 were invited, but only an estimated 200 people were present. A concert featuring Kapuso talents began at 10:15 p.m. Program host Richard Gutierrez, visibly got drunk when a cameraman hindered his view of the teleprompter.

Halfway into the show, Richard was supposed to share the stage with ex-host for "Cokebit," but he was missing. The camera turned to the stage as the show's
